

Welcoming 2006

Many years ago a good friend sent out a Jewish New Year's card that managed in only seven words to lay out the roadmap to joyful living and express hope for the coming year. Those words were:

- Renew
- Rejoice
- Reflect
- Respond
- Replenish
- Rekindle
- Respect

In sharing our hopes for the New Year and our sincerest wishes to all Tudog's friends and associates, we find ourselves drawn to these seven words.

- We wish you the capacity to renew your commitment to all those aspects of your life that are important to you – family, friends, business, and community.
- We wish you the freedom to rejoice and celebrate even the littlest of victories. May your victories be frequent and meaningful in 2006.
- We wish you the insight to reflect on all your activities and actions and improve your performance, for your sake and the sake of others.
- We wish you the wisdom to respond to challenges with thought and purpose, and to respond to criticism with sensitivity and consideration.
- We wish you the opportunity to replenish your strength when the going gets tough and you're tired and worn and we hope you never run low on love for and from the people close to you.
- We wish you the spark to rekindle old friendships and business opportunities.
- We wish you the comfort of respect from those around you and the warmth to show respect back.

We hope 2006 brings you everything you wish for, and may we all share in peace and prosperity.
